An Incident of Anti-Slavery Reform

[?] A rough draft of an article dealing with the New Bedford Lyceum and the New Bedford Lecture Association, the former having special seats reserved for colored people, and the latter having been formed by the Abolitionists as a protest against this segregation. The Lyceum does not explain its policy of segregation to potential lecturers, who are induced by a fee of $20 and traveling expenses. The Rev. Robert C. Waterston and others "have accepted in their ignorance of the facts," invitations that they would otherwise have rejected. Manuscript. 12 p. 7 7/8 x 4 7/8 in.; 7 3/4 x 4 7/8 in.; 8 x 5 1/8 in.

Notes? Partial letter?,

« ? » The writer thought Theodore Parker lacked moral courage and cites the instance of a meeting when he had not dared to ask his audience for signatures to Anti-Slavery petitions. Says "the atmosphere of Cambridge was never good for the salvation of a nation." Discusses Dr. «William Ellery» Channing. "He had neither insight, foresight, moral courage, or firmness, & he just suited "those» as deficient as himself ..."

To "Bella" (Deborah Weston)

ₐBostonₐ The writer reflects on people who want to "feel the comfort of being a trampled minority after the time has gone by, & they are the party in power." Describes the effect of the current state of apprehension among the circle. The writer's own house was watched because of cries heard, "To Mrs. Chapman's!" Tells of "run-away rings" at her door, in one case the ringer later turning out to have been "Willie Garrison," sent to fetch the writer to Ann Terry who did not feel safe.

[?] Having found a number of members of the [Boston Female Anti-Slavery?] Society opposed to making the Society's report the vehicle of the addressees' communication which was handed her by the Misses Ball, the writer justifies her course in inserting this communication in the front of the report, and states that she will discharge the extra expense incurred. Regrets that the communication was ambiguous and that those who made it "should not have taken a different position from the outset." Recognizes in the society "an apparently irreconcilable diffe[illegible] of opinion." The writer has always announced her inte[illegible]n not to suppress her own views.

To Elizur Wright

[before 15 Sept. 1837]

[?] The writer expresses her deep conviction of the "absolute necessity of holding by Garrison with a giant-grasp at this moment." Reproaches the New York Abolitionists for not noticing the conduct of those Iscariots, James Trask Woodbury and Charles Fitch. "... It cannot be surely that you fear to be called a 'manworshipper' or a 'Garrisonite'. It cannot be that you are deceived by the black hearted ministry of our country ..." Is shocked that they are leaving Garrison and Amos A. Phelps "to attack the theological demon alone!" Praises Garrison and considers his letter to Woodbury "a thing that will be hereafter cited [illegible] an instance of moral independence-truly wonderful." A [illegible] of danger from temptations in New York "bursts upon" the writer.

«Boston» Says that the Anti-Slavery cause is prospering in Boston. However, the converts to Abolitionism "seem to hate the persons of abolitionists more than ever." M. (W.) C. explains this apparent inconsistency. Asks "if $1200 will enable the editorial department of the Liberator to move forward with sufficient ease." W. Phillips said that in Worcester County the "Emancipator certainly left men asleep ..." Attended the funeral of Mrs. A. A. Phelps. Is planning to have a portrait of J. Q. Adams painted by William Page. H. C. Wright has been lecturing in Weymouth. "I send you Emerson's oration." It has caused quite a stir in Cambridge. «Boston.» The Abolitionist must be put down, "or it will put down the Mass.Soc." Therefore it is necessary to send out agents for "the cradle" (Cradle of Liberty), to counteract Amos A. Phelps's scheme of getting subscribers for the Abolitionist. Five hundred dollars are needed. The writer considers a fair in New Bedford as a possible solution of the problem, and insists that the addressee, with Susan Taber, Mary Congdon, Mary Anna Bailey, etc., "must get it up the 1st of June or so." To Anne Warren Weston

[Boston] The writer begins by telling about the activities of her children. Mentions a discussion with Garrison about the advisability of going to a Walker meeting where Joshua Leavitt, George Bradburn, H. B. Stanton and others were urging the formation of an Abolitionist third party. Discusses her children's meal and bedtime schedules. Argued Episcopalianism with her daughter, Lizzie. Gives an account of her daily life. Saved her Chinese idol from wood-boring insects by pouring boiling water over it. Describes Lizzie's piano playing. Draws a pattern for a collar. Says that Cassius M. Clay wanted an interview [illegible] her.

«Boston» The writer expects to see a letter in the Liberator from John F. Emerson defending his delivery of the famous A. A. Phelps letter to the writer for insertion in Right and Wrong in Massachusetts. Tells of her Anti-Slavery plans,-a trip to Lynn, an offer to write letters for the New Bedford fair, writing poetry, etc. Mentions the letter from Deborah Palmer (No.99), which she answered with a warning to have nothing to do with the Misses Ball. Considers appealing to Andrew Robeson for $1000. Thinks that internal dissension has driven away the weak and cowardly Abolitionists. Discusses briefly a system of weekly money collections. Praises the independence of the Liberator.

To Elizabeth (Pease) Nichol

«Boston» Thanks E. (P.) N. for letters and newspapers relating to the British Indian question sent by her and G. Thompson. Thinks that the Chartists should aid the British Indian reform movement. Regrets that the American Quakers are opposed to the Abolitionists and feels sorry for W. Bassett, a former Quaker. The Democrats in western New York persuaded the Abolitionists there to nominate Anti-Slavery candidates "to weaken the forces of the Whigs ..." The "Garrison-haters" used the idea as a plausible pretext for opposition to the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Compares the treachery of Gerrit Smith, a Third Party man, with that of a member of the British India Society, who secr[illegible] opposes it. Would like to meet E. (P.) «39 Summer St., Boston» C. aroline Weston and M. ary Chapman visited Ann and Wendell Phillips in Nahant. E. Quincy has written "a sort of apostolic letter to the Ripley Community" (Brook Farm) inviting them to a picnic. "Theodore Parker too is expected." (George W. F.?) Mellen spent the evening. Parkman Blake called, and Mr. Beane, who came "about getting Anne to supply Abby «Osgood's» place." Dr. Gay has gone to Europe, and his place is taken by Dr. Ware, who has a "reputation in lung complaints." He has given H. G. [Boston] The writer is sick in bed with influenza; describes symptoms and will take the medicine prescribed by Hervey (Weston). Tells at length about the correspondence with Thomas G. Appleton, who received a letter intended for John James Appleton (see letter no.78). Hopes that the goods sent from Paris by T.G. Appleton will arrive in time, and suggests from what sources they may be paid for. A box has arrived from Dublin, others seem to be on the way from Cork and Glasgow. The Liberty Bell is "almost done - tolerably successfully." Edmund Quincy has contributed a good story, but "[Nathaniel P.] Rogers's piece is not a c[illegible]it to him - and will not go in. We may hear from Longfel[illegible] Stetson." The writer also asked Charles Sumner. Alludes [illegible] David L. Child's "folly."

"To the Bishop of Oxford" .Samuel Wilberforce.

.No pl.. Calls the attention of the addressee, as the historian of the American Episcopal Church, to the Book of Common Prayer, now being circulated in the South, which contains an "expurgated" version of the picture by Ary Scheffer, with the supplicating slave removed from the presence of Christ. This prayer-book will be forwarded to the addressee "in the hope of a word of rebuke from you for Christ's sake as the Redeemer of man from the sin of slavery..." The writer is sending also a copy of the Liberty Bell, in which she has referred to the expurgated picture, and a copy of the National Anti-Slavery Standard. Recalls how much abolitionists owe to the addressee's father (Will[illegible] Wilberforce).

«Paris» Refers to a letter from Sarah Pugh consulting the writer about the advisability of sending an agent to England to solicit for the Philadelphia fair. At that time this did not seem to the writer advisable because of the provincial nature of the Philadelphia bazaar. Now the writer suggests that they secure all possible advantages "by assuming, yourselves, after consultation... with our committee in Boston, the style and title of '16th National A.S. Bazaar, at Philadelphia'." Because of their commitments for the Freeman, they could not, like the Bostonians, turn over the whole proceeds to the National Society, but they could state that al money above $1000 would be paid over as usual. The Liberty Bell, printed in Boston, should have the imprimatur of Philadelphia.

To Deborah Weston No.70

«260 Fourth Ave. (N. Y.)» The writer reports on family business affairs. "I saw by the papers that the row was a very tame affair, looked to me like a wrestling match." Business is flourishing. "We shall lose about $16000, a flea compared to most people." An old Scotchman named George Smith, for whom the writer had invested nearly a million within the month, complimented her on her skillful purchasing; she now has the "whole control of the stock department." There is no chance of a dissolution «of the Union?» just yet. Stocks only rose ten per cent. Contrasts the former attitude of the South with the present; now [illegible] must sell at a loss, for they must have dollars to b[illegible]od. bu[illegible] food ^ "I look for an insurrection within a month." Describes the health and beauty of the little boy «grandchild?» with her. The writer is beginning

260 4th Ave., New York. The writer begins with a discussion of her firm's financial results for the year and a general criticism of the "fancy doings at Washington." "Keep writing to me ... My mind works all day on securities & orders ..." Describes her grandson (~~Harry~~ Henry Chapman's son?) in glowing terms. Attacks Sydney Howard Gay for an article in the Tribune. Praises John Jay and discusses the state of her health.

He does not, however, accuse England of seeking to break up the United States, as Wendell Phillips does. Criticizes Wendell's policy as silly. Dr. (Amos) Farnsworth is dead at the age of 72. The writer discusses the financial need of the (American) A.S. Society. Dwells on the difference of the present time from the past. Contrasts the attitudes of Phillips and Pillsbury with Garrison's. Discusses the situation of the Standard. Neither the Hovey nor the Jackson fund can be applied to the Standard, as neither Hovey nor Jackson liked the paper. Describes Mrs.Howe's funeral at Mt.Auburn Cemetery. "Certainly there is something consoling in death." The writer tells how she dispelled some scandalous gossip about Effie Tudor's marriage by giving the facts. Charles Follen was delighted to see "the ugly Boston spirit put down." The writer daily observes political selfishness at work. "All this mingling of reasoning & feeling sprung up in my mind on hearing a pro-slavery patriot rail against Europe." To those who imagine the writer identified in feeling with the English nobility she replies: "It is no part of my mission to defend Duchesses." Discourses on the wrong attitude of American patriots toward the Lancashire cotton workers. "Garrison is shining at this hour in contrast with Pillsbury & Co." The writer had a note from C(harles) Follen "saying he was off like a shot for Port Royal." Refers to General (David)Hunter's proclamation declaring the slaves of rebel states as free. «New York» "The news of last week - that the Battle of Chancellorsville was the greatest disaster yet, is confirmed. But it makes no impression, as it causes no result. The story of the flight of the 11th army corps is frightful. Ingersoll Grafton was in their way as they came mad & frantic with terror, shrieking & praying to be allowed to run off in safety -"

The writer explains: "But they had been fighting 4 hours, we learn from other quarters, & when they found they were not to be supported, while the enemy was being reinforced opposite to them, they gave way & lost [illegible]ir heads. The writer says of Wendell Phillips that "with all the good he might do," his judgment is weakened by emulation of Pillsbury and John Brown. William Jay is useful on Meade's staff; "he & his horse held out at the Battle of Chancellorsville till the very last."

Garrison experiences "some of the difficulty of disbanding an army." Garrison's, the writer's, and H.C. Notes regarding Harriet Martineau No.111

. ? . The writer says that Harriet Martineau "used to find great fault with the delay of consultations in writing Biography." She thought that revision often destroyed clearness of impression. Tells about young men naming their horses after Miss Martineau. .The writer, however, didn't mention this practice in the "Memorials." "In her Eastern travels H. M. recommends the use of cigars in journeying." Mr. Atkinson suggested the inclusion of an illustration of H. M. smoking a cigar in the "Memorials."

The second part of these notes is entitled "The Hour and the Man." The writer praise[illegible] M.'s choice of titles. Received "The Hour and the Man" [illegible] visiting Haiti in 1840 and showed it to her acquaintance[illegible] who thought H. M. must have

[?] The writer begins with a brief reference to Harriet Martineau's will. Goes on to discuss what H. M. said about the material to be included in the "Autobiography," and what was to be excluded. Talks about H. M.'s funeral, and a post-mortem done on H. M. at the request of Ellen Martineau. Mentions an effort to keep her from referring to James Martineau's bad conduct in the "Autobiography." A book by the Princess Doria d'Istria mentions H. M. Tells of an effort to induce the City of Boston to remove two licentious teachers, one the brother of Ezra S. Gannett, and the other a man named Forbes, from the Coloured Sc[illegible]l. The Abolitionists wanted to break up the School, whi[illegible] founded by Rev. William Ellery Channing. ‹Weymouth, Mass.› In reply to a card from the addressee, the writer gives the dates of the publication of "Right and Wrong in Boston." There were three numbers or parts. No.1 is "a concise statement of events previous & subsequent to the annual meeting of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society" with the motto from Fénelon: "Si je vous parle fortement, n'en soyez pas étonné; c'est que la verité est libre et forte." Explains the delayed publication date, due to the reluctance of the book-sellers. When the addressee finds a copy of this number, the writer can "thrust in a few notes-not needed at the time; but now, by years, [illegible] made necessary." Explains the background of No.1: Society, [illegible]e, State and Church all being in bonds of slavery, it seemed "[illegible]dful needful to begin first with Soc-

J.Martineau and Mrs.Miller "together set themselves to deny to Harriet's autobiography any claim to credit or notice - but six editions of a 6 dollar book are proof enough of its goodness." James Martineau was Harriet's idol too, "till he compelled her to know him as the bad man & family tyrant he is ..." Mr. Thomas Martineau, coexecutor with the writer, must not be blamed for her exposure of James Martineau. Mrs. Miller did not know Harriet M. [New Haven, Conn.] The writer asks what the addressee is going to do with the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society. Mentions A. A. Phelps, C. T. Torrey, the New Organization and the woman question. Does not see how Torrey and Phelps can argue the woman question without encouraging a demand for equal rights, especially since the publication of Right and Wrong in Massachusetts. Discusses the Anti-Slavery situation and the prospects of the New Society in New Haven. Thinks the New Organizations should be ignored. Mentions the Amistad mutineers and says that they have excited much interest. Notes Leonard Bacon's attac[illegible] the principles of Non-Resistance. Tells about a debat[illegible] a theological seminary on the subject of immediate emancipation, presided over by Dr. Taylor. Invites Garrison to visit the Theological Seminary.

[New York] Thinks that the addressee does not do justice "to our strong-hearted James S. Gibbons." The writer feels a great respect for him. "I am going to publish a set of interrogatories adapted to most elections." Thinks it wrong to have been so indolent and distrustful "about this instrumentality." Comments on the fire kindled by Edward Everett's reply. "It flared up to the terror and dismay of the slavemongers. When a candidate has answered our letters favorably, he becomes an object of suspicion & proscription with them." The writer is thinking with secret satisfaction of the Philadelphia meeting. Abby Kelley denounces him as a "traitor in all but 'overt acts'."

Our anti-slavery world is not the world; but renown therein is sometimes mistaken for world renown." Continues in this vein. Comments on the Liberator and will use extracts of the two leading articles for the Standard. "I do not think it worth while to discuss minute differences when the summa rerum is at stake."

<New York> Doubts the desirability of holding 300 conventions Has not received favorable reports from the Western Conventions. "Privately, and I think from impartial sources, I have heard that these conventions have not done much good." Fault was not found with the agents. Quotes Virgil to the effect that "I (i.e. "we") have worked, but others have taken the honors." The writer would not be able to leave New York, as the Standard takes all his week days and Sundays. Discusses the qualifications of Richard Hildreth, mentioning his "propensity to enter party combinations and electioneering." The writer declares that he hims[illegible]s "a faithful dog and will remain so, even if upon the [illegible]stion of the wolves the flock should discard me." ‹Cambridge, Indiana› The writer wants to make his position clear in regard to the incident at Syracuse. Conflicting notices were given of a "property convention" and of an anti-slavery meeting for the same afternoon. The next day, before adjournment of the morning session, the writer announced the afternoon anti-slavery meeting, whereupon John A. Collins announced a property meeting, and made a speech, referring to the "bigotry and narrowmindedness of abolitionists," etc. Charles L. Remond replied, expressing "the belief that the Board of Managers could not sanction him (Collins) as their general agent." Then Collins [illegible] documents complimentary to himself, and presented four [illegible]itions, which the writer quotes, to the effect that th[illegible]niversal reform movement will benefit the slave more than the anti-slavery movement alone. In the afternoon the writer at the meeting posed the question "whether it was just or honorable for Mr. Collins to labor in the one «cause» for the distruction «sic» of the other," and closed by saying that if the Board sanctioned Mr. Collins's course, the writer felt it his duty to resign his agency for carrying out the plan of the hundred conventions. [London] The writer did not "doubt the purity of intention" which led the addressee to write about him as she did to Mr. R.D. Webb. Yet he would have thought it more friendly if she had chosen to give her counsel directly "and free from what I must regard an uncalled for and invidious comparison of myself and Mr. [J.N.] Buffum." George Thompson urged the writer to attend the British & Foreign Anti.Slavery Society meeting, mainly in the interest of the Free Church agitation. The writer told the meeting that he was an old organizationist. In Carlisle, England, the writer secured contributions for the Boston fair.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

[Bristol, England.] The writer assures the addressee of the propriety of sending the portrait of Dr. [William Ellery] Channing to him. The writer felt no obligation to be the purchaser, but thought it best to remit the price of the picture in the interest of the Bazaar, and has no present intention of transferring it. Refers to the interest taken by the addressee's brother in negotiating for the printing of Miss Parker's translation of [Frederick] Douglass's Narrative [into French]. This year no large box should be expected from Bristol for the Bazaar, but they have not been inactive in the Anti-Slavery cause. The wri[illegible]'s efforts to induce English Unitarians to take up the ca[illegible]ave not proved acceptable. The editor of the Christian [illegible]ster has not dealt honorably

«Bristol, England» The writer reports that F. Douglass's Narrative was translated into French by Miss Kate Parks. "...the work has remained unsold on Pagnerre's shelves ..." Gives his ideas on what to do with unsold Anti-Slavery books. "Your brother Dr. «Hervey» Weston kindly contributed 20 francs towards expenses," andJ. O. Murray arranged for printing. Mentions receiving Jay's Review of the Mexican War. W. H. Chan- has not replied to the writer in regard to the writer's portrait of W. E. Channing. The Carpenters are expecting a visit from Mrs. E. To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman,

Oxford Terrace, The writer tells what is on her mind in regard to a school for colored pupils planned by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. Agrees with the addressee, but considers that "this is Mrs. Stowe's affair" and that she will probably have her own way in any case. The writer is in favor of the school plan and believes that the education of free colored people is a step toward their freedom. Believes the addressee not "quite moonstruck enough" to believe that she can induce Mrs. Stowe to deliver the money raised by her friends "for her to use as she thinks best" into the hands of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Suggests ad[illegible]g Mrs. Stowe to place the money in the hands of trustee[illegible] be used for the education of colored men or women in any school or college in America

«(Paris?) France» The writer reports the death of her grandmother and the plans for the funeral. Hopes to be with the addressee the first week in June, and accepts her gracious hospitality. "I accept because I believe you, and I believe you because I love you." Tells about the engagements of Mme L'hoste's daughter and of Miss Crossthwait. Mme Bremi has talked with the writer about certain projects of the addressee. Mentions a pamphlet, "le célibat," including an article signed Eve, which is "the most bizarre rhapsody one can imagine."

The writer begins with an acknowledgment of contributions to the Philadelphia Fair, the circular of the weekly contribution plan, Liberator extras and a package of Right and Wrong in Massachusetts. Tells of a meeting in which it was agreed that a local German paper should be subscribed to instead of the Liberator. Comments on the reasons given by the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery Society for its attitude in regard to the New Organization. Mentions the difficulty of finding a replacement for J. G. Whittier as editor of the Pennsylvania Freeman. Also explains his tolerant attitude toward the New Organiza[illegible]n by saying he was a friend of H. B. Stanton. [?] The writer welcomes the addressee back to New England and her Anti-Slavery labors. The writer tells of her gradual conversion to Abolition. Describes the section (of Springfield, Mass.?) called "Hayti," where negroes live in "poverty, wretchedness & sin ... but especially Intemperance." In spite of the squalor and depravity, these free negroes are not worse off than slaves. The writer and her sister, who kept a school at the house of a "respectable family" where they resided, were evicted because they received an evening visit from a negro preacher, an escaped ex-slave. The writer, however, found a champion, who made it possi[illegible] for them to stay till the end of the term. The same friend ~~[illegible]ed~~ stopped the plot of some young men to mob the writer and her sister when they went to "Hayti."

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

[Dublin, (Ireland)] The writer would have replied sooner to the addressee's letter, but he went to London to protest against the excise tax on paper. Called on Mrs. E. L. (C.) Follen and Miss Susan Cabot at 5 Albion St., Hyde Park. Met Miss Montgomery. "... it is very difficult to excite a real interest in the English mind towards anything outside their own bounds ..." Says that the English are readily repelled by the language which the Abolitionists have to use, and that they don't feel that the Anti-Slavery cause is their own. Comments on Mrs. Follen's poor health. Miss Cabot is somewhat eclipsed by Mrs. Follen. Mr[illegible] F.'s son is studying chemistry at the University of Londo[illegible]fers to J. B. Estlin's article about the Fugitive Slave Law. Mrs. Massie is the wife of an anti-Garrisonian minister, and the writer praises her for her Anti-Slavery zeal. Mrs. G. Thompson told the writer that her son was dying of consumption. Mrs. Massie said that G. Thompson had no chance to be re-elected to Parliament. The writer's sister, Deborah Juliot, visited the Westons. Tells about two Abolitionists, a mother and her daughter, who live in Manchester, and helped Joseph Barker when he was falsely arrested. The writer's brother-in-law returned to Ireland. Expresses pity for a Mme. Bardonneau. Says that S. May Jr. notified him of the approa[illegible] the Anti-Slavery fair. The Estlins think they can und[illegible] the influence of the British & Foreign Anti-Slavery Society in Bristol. Says his youngest child is in bed with influenza. 8 x 5 1/8 ins.

.Dublin, (Ireland). The writer heard from a relative that Parker Pillsbury's wife and daughter positively refuse to come to England in case he does. The writer heard from Mrs. (Henry) Turner who considers the propriety of Pillsbury's coming as an agent very doubtful. "You will think of my having placed at one time undue confidence in Douglas-but ... keener witted people than I am were not quite free from the same mistake." Elizabeth Pease Nichol was in Dublin. "She is happily married and is a darling ... Her husband is not at all equal to herself-but he is very passable & she takes a warm & affectionate interest in his family ..." Wishes the add-could get Garrison to write to her.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

« ? » The writer expects Aunt Mary's family to pass a few weeks in Newton, a short distance from them. The writer asks Debora to get for her any two books she fancies, old or new; has been reading Miss Pardoe and doesn't like her at all. Deborah is to explain how Wendell «Phillips» can lecture at Charlestown and Bridgewater the same day. The writer's father does not seem equal to very long walks this summer, though he is far better than the last week they were at home.

[?] The writer regrets her separation from Mrs. Chapman while the latter is still suffering from her late illness. Speaks of Deborah [Weston] as a "careful, kind & efficient nurse." Hopes soon to have Elizabeth staying with her and will, with Mrs. Chapman's permission, send her to school; as the teacher boards in the writer's house. "Lizzy can have advantages on that account or disadvantages as she would estimate them." Life is very quiet; last summer they were always conscious of Wendell and Ann [Phillips]'s being with them. Among the novelties here is a map of Connecticut on which the writer has search[illegible]or Stonington, "a memorable place in our annals."

[Newton (Mass.)] The writer makes arrangements for Lizzy's [Elizabeth B. Chapman's?] wardrobe. Elizabeth has been very teasing to Emma; the writer's own patience is sometimes nearly exhausted. Asks if Deborah was in jest or in earnest in her congratulations on G. G.'s marriage. The records of their [Ladies' Anti-Slavery?] Convention "appear very bare without any of the speeches recorded." But even if they were, she does not think that "our brethren would recognize our equality. There are few Angelinas [Angelina Grimké Weld?]" The most interesting remarks the writer heard were those made by Sarah Grimké. Asks if Debor[illegible]s heard anything of the "Fair" meeting, and whether [illegible] [Joshua?] Leavitt has left town. If Deborah is at the Library, would she send any old or new books "that will do." Is glad D. found "my 'prince

«New Haven, Conn.» The writer asks what the addressee is going to do with the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society. Mentions A. A. Phelps, C. T. Torrey, the New Organization and the woman question. Does not see how Torrey and Phelps can argue the woman question without encouraging a demand for equal rights, especially since the publication of Right and Wrong in Massachusetts. Discusses the Anti-Slavery situation and the prospects of the New Society in New Haven. Thinks the New Organizations should be ignored. Mentions the Amistad mutineers and says that they have excited much interest. Notes Leonard Bacon's attack [illegible] the principles of Non-Resistance. Tells about a debate [illegible] a theological seminary on the subject of immediate emancipation, presided over by Dr. Taylor. Invites Garrison to visit the Theological Seminary.

Apr 14 Coste, Jean Paul

To [Michel Ange Bernard de Mangourit]

[Charleston] Regrets departure of Mangourit. Describes arrival in Charleston of French prisoners from Cuba, and religious services for the occasion. Is willing to lose his church for the sake of his country. Recommends his friend Lavit who will deliver this letter. Has written an anti-British play [America Preserved, or The Americans and French at the Siege of Yorktown] which is to be acted [on May 7 1795]

Deposition before Richard Bellingham. Case of Richard Chasmore.

[Rhode Island.] Testifies as to the gossip he has heard respecting Richard Chasmore and the charge against him of bestiality. Had heard from Roger Williams that the cause of the proceedings against him was the information given by George Palmer. Had heard that Richard Chasmore was going away: had heard John Green's wife say she feared he was guilty, also Goodwife Carpenter and Stephen Arnold's wife. Had been with Palmer when he denied giving information and said he knew no more of it than the gossip of the women and the Indians. A.D.S. 2p. 8 x 6 in.
